Inside the Classroom

- Math—Our work on the multiplication playlist is coming to an end. The kids have adjusted well to our personalized learning model, and we are looking forward to continuing on to our division playlist.
- Science—We continue to need 2-liter clear soda bottles, preferably Pepsi. We begin our study of ecosystems tomorrow and hope to make our eco-columns late next week!
- Reading—We have learned new strategies for close reading and are working hard to improve our metacognition (thinking about our thinking)!! We continue our analysis of characters in fiction texts.
- Writing—We will begin brainstorming ideas for a personal narrative soon!!

Notes from Mrs. Rabb:

WOW!! What a great time we have had these past two weeks! The kids are sharing a little bit more about themselves every day. It is an honor to hear their stories and watch them get to know one another through these shared experiences. Our class read-aloud, "Because of Mr. Terupt" has gotten REALLY GOOD this week—we are ahead of the other 5th grade classes, and the kids are sworn to secrecy about the plot so far! As always, let me know if you have questions or need information.
